

PAUL BOOTHE

Professor of Economics
University of Alberta

Paul Boothe is Professor of Economics and Fellow, Institute for Public Economics at the University of Alberta. He served as Deputy Minister of Finance and Secretary to Treasury Board for the Province of Saskatchewan for 1999-2001 and Associate Deputy Minister of Finance and G7 Deputy for Canada for 2004-05. Dr. Boothe received his undergraduate training in economics at the University of Western Ontario and his doctoral degree from the University of British Columbia. Before joining the Economics Department at the University of Alberta, Dr. Boothe worked in the International Department of the Bank of Canada. He has held visiting positions at Queen's University, University of Tasmania, and Alberta Treasury and has served as an advisor or consultant to federal and provincial government departments and international agencies.

His current research interests include fiscal relations between governments, government budgeting and public sector performance measurement. Dr. Boothe has authored or edited numerous books, articles and monographs, including: Tax Collection in Canada: Principles for Design, Prospects for Reform (with T. Snoddon, C.D. Howe Institute Commentary, 1994), The Growth of Government Spending in Alberta (Canadian Tax Foundation, 1995), Reforming Fiscal Federalism for Global Competition (University of Alberta Press, 1996), Finding a Balance: Renewing Canadian Fiscal Federalism (C.D. Howe Institute, 1998), Deficit Reduction in the Far West (University of Alberta Press, 2001), Eric Hanson's Financial History of Alberta: 1905-1950 (with H. Edwards, University of Calgary Press, 2003) and What Happened to Health Reform? (with M. Carson, C.D. Howe Institute Commentary, 2004).