

DEBORAH YEDLIN

National Business Columnist, Calgary
Globe and Mail

---

Deborah Yedlin began her career as an investment banker, working in corporate finance in New York with Goldman Sachs and later with Canadian firms in Toronto and Calgary. She left the finance world in 1993, working first with Parallel Strategies as an investor relations consultant and later forming her own company, Words Worth Ink. Deborah joined the Globe and Mail as its western business columnist in September of 2002 and is heard weekly on CBC radio both locally and nationally. In addition to her work-related activities, Deborah is also active in the arts community, recently completing a four year term on the board of the Calgary Philharmonic Orchestra and is now a member of the Calgary Opera board.

Deborah graduated from the University of Alberta with a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and English in 1984 and completed her MBA at Queen's University in 1991 with a major in finance and marketing.
